HEARST TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

HE'LL BE ONE OF THREE, AND PERHAPS FOUR, CANDIDATES.

Gaynor or No Gaynor, He'll Make a Fight on an Independent Ticket-Plattodell Peace of Little Real Importance in the Present Tangled Situation.

Representative William R. Hearst made It known through his friends last night that he would run as an independent Democratic candidate for Governor this fall. Mr. Hearst's friends had read stories in newspapers to the effect that he would retire from the independent field if Supreme Court Justice William J. Gaynor of Kings county was nominated by the Democratic State convention.

These reports, said Mr. Hearst's friends, were the outcrop of friendly relations which had existed for several years between Mr Hearst and Justice Gaynor, and were particularly interesting because Mr. Hearst was very desirous last fall that Justice Gaynor should be the candidate for Mayor of New York city.

Mr. Hearst's friends went on to say last night that they were authorized to announce that Mr Hearst did not believe Justice Caynor to be the man for the situation: that while Justice Gaynor was a very talented jurist he lacked the political sturdiness which, according to Mr. Hearst, the situation in political circles in New York State requires.

"If Mr. Murphy of Tammany," said Mr. Hearst's friend, "wants to get aboard the Hearst band wagon, all well and good, but no invitation will be extended to Mr. Murphy, or to Senator McCarren, or to anybody else. Mr. Hearst wants no partners in his political enterprises. Mr. Hearst can be beaten for Governor, but he can be beaten alone."

The significance of the Hearst announcement was recognized by politicians of the Republican and Democratic camps last night, when they said that Justice Gaynor would not be a candidate for Governor at the hands of the Democratic party this fall-as represented in the regular

Most of the politicians talked with last night were convinced that there would be three, and possibly four, State tickets in the field this fall-namely: Regular Republican, Regular Democratic, Independent Democratic and Hearst. The poor old Demo-cratic machine of the State, it was said, is hungry for sustenance from any quarter. The Republican machine, it was insisted, is suffering from general inanition, superinduced by long continuance in power, as well as the personal and vitriolic quarrels of the factions, which are at white heat in almost every county of the State.

Very little importance, it was stated, has been given by thoughtful people to the new iance between Senator Platt and Mr. Odell. The people who look for results and care very little for petty details were of the opinion that while the resumption of political relations between Senator Platt and Mr. Odell may give Mr. Platt passing fanciful notions, and may revive aspirationin Mr. Odell, the rank and file of the Republican party of the State of New York may have a few notions of their own.

The trouble has been for several years. said a Republican at the Union League Club last night, "that some of our political leaders have looked upon the Republican organization of the State as a personal asset. The Republicans with whom I have talked, the fellows who go to the polis and drop in ballots, have got on to this situation, and most of them are pretty well disgusted with it. The manœuvres of these machine politicians for place and power are spoken of by the Republicans with whom I have talked as further evidences of an utter disregard for the welfare of the party's prin-

"We all know that most of our Republican friends do not believe that they can elect a Republican State ticket this fall; and it is surprising to me how many well known men in the party, when approached, have declined to become candidates. There is a spirit of independence abroad in the State which is due entirely to the utter incompetence of the Democratic party and the distressing conditions in the Republican

Take, for instance, politicians pointed out, the ticket for Supreme Court Justices named by the lawyers for the First Judicial Department, New York county. The two machines, Democratic and Republican, are in a daze ever that ticket. Politicians representing these two political machines said last night that they didn't know whether they would or could indorse this lawyers' independent ticket for Justices, while friends of the lawyers' ticket said very plainly that they didn't care if either machine indorsed the ticket or not, that the people of New York county were awake and had been very much so since Jerome won that marvellous victory last fall, when the betting was ten to one against Jerome merely because an honest and straightforward District Attorney who had served the people faithfully for four years couldn't get a place on the city ticket named by Murphy and Odell.

The same spirit, it was said, which triumphantly elected Jerome against what appeared to be overwhelming odds is now very much manifest in New York county concerning the lawyers' ticket for Supreme

There are about one hundred boys, in addition to a crew of eighteen men, on the St. Mary's, the nautical school of New York. She left here early in June for her annual cruise. She touched at Glen Cove and then went to New London. The last report of her came from Commander G. C. Hanus, who sent a letter from Lisbon on June 25 to A. Emerson Palmer, secretary of the Board of Education.

The early part of the trip was a severe one, Commander Hanus wrote. He said it was the roughest the St. Mary's ever experienced and that meant a good deal, as the schoolship has been making yearly cruises for a long time. She is over sixty years old but is still considered stanch and seaworthy.

On June 12, Commander Hanus said, the St. Mary's ran into a gale and passed within eight miles of an leeberg.

"The gale increased and the seas were tremendous," Commander Hanus wrote-The ship rode like a duck but now and lurched so that the crew were thrown off their feet. Some sustained minor in-

It was a rough experience for the young sailors and one succumbed. He was Irving Hendrickson of Queens, L. I. On the first day and night of the storm Hendrickson did his share of the work, but the exposure and cold were too much for him and he had a congestive chill. Then came pneumonia and he died on June 19.

The St. Mary's arrived at Lisbon on June 25. She reported then that despite the rough trip everybody was well. The storm somewhat interfered with the plans of the cruise, Commander Hanus said, but he did not specify how. At the time of the accident she was headed for the Mediterranean

FOUR ALDERMEN INDICTED. New Rochelle Legislators Are Charged

Here With Attempted Bribery. The Grand Jury took action yesterday on the charge that five Aldermen of New Rochelle attempted recently to obtain $16,000 in bribes for granting a franchise to the State Telephone Company, an independent organization. Four indictments were handed down and last night detectives from this city, armed with bench warrants issued by Recorder Goff, went to New Rochelle to arrest the Aldermen. It is said that one of them left New Rochelle a few days ago for a South American country.

For more than a week the Grand Jury has been examining witnesses. Several Aldermen were examined, including Herman Kallenberg, Charles W. Hildring, Alfred Rado and Anthony J. Rivers.

The charges against the Aldermen were made by D. A. Reynolds, who is vice-president of the State Line Telephone Co and president of the Great Eastern and Coast Line Telephone Company. Mr. Reynolds charged that several Aldermen came to him and demanded sums ranging fram $3,000 to $5,000 for granting the application of the State Line Telephone Company. Mr. Reynolds said that the Aldermen came t he had a stenographer behind a screen in his office and she took a stenographic report of everything that was said. The stenographer was Miss Freda Roesling.

Mr. Reynolds said that Kallenberg came to him early last February and opened negotiations. According to Mr. Reynolds, Kallenberg said he represented the other Aldermen, and Mr. Reynolds had a talk with each of them. All the conversations were taken down. They were finally embodied in affidavits, which were sworn to by Mr. Reynolds and Miss Rossling.

These affidavits were turned over to District Attorney Young of Westchester county by George F. Lewis, Harry C. Perley and George Govers, representing a citizens committee of New Roohelle. After Mr. Young had looked into the situation he turned everything over to District Attorney Jerome. For some time Assistant District Attorney Nott has been busy with the case Nearly all the Aldermen of New Rochelle have been questioned. Mr. Reynolds and Miss Roesling were also examined. Then the Grand Jury took the matter up.

The indictments are for bribery, and while they were not made public yesterday ft is understood that in each case they charge the same state of facts, based on the statements of Miss Roesling and Mr. Reynolds.

YOUNG ANDRE WOUNDED IN DUEL Receives Sword Thrust From Guy de Ca

sagnae in Fathers' Quarrel.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN Paris, July 13.-Guy de Cassagnac, whose father, the late Paul de Cassagnac was in his time the most notorious duellist in France, took up the sword in defence of his father's honor to-day. He fought a duel with Lieut. André, son of Gen. André, a former Minister of War, because Gen. André had accused the elder Cassagnac of asking favors from the Government.

The meeting took place on private grounds at Neuilly. Swords were the weapons chosen by Lieut. André, who was the challenged party, and the combatants fought furiously. Each of them evidently meant to do all the mischief he could. Lieut. Audré received a wound in the arm. During the en-counter Cassagnac's sword was broken. The publication in the Matin of Gen.

Andre's statement was what led to the trouble. Cassagnao demanded to know if Lieut. André accepted responsibility for his father's words, and on being informed that he did sent him a challenge.

Both Cassagnac and Lieut. André come of belligerent stock. André's father was Minister of War from May, 1900, when he sucseeded Gen. Gallifet, of Dreyfus case fame, until November, 1904, when he resigned soon after a disgraceful scene in the Chamber of Deputies. He was struck in the face by labriel Syveton, a Nationalist Deputy, during a debate on November 4. A duel resulted from this affair.

Gen. André was unable to challenge, owing to his official position, and his friend Capt. Gall encountered Syveton. Two shots were exchanged, but neither of the men was wounded. Syveton was threatened with a trial on the charge of assaulting a Minister, and soon afterward he was found dead of gas asphyxiation in his home, having evidently committed suicide.

MRS. LESLIE CARTER A BRIDE.

MARRIES LEW PAYNE, THE ACTOR, AT PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

Kept Diverce Secret From Eniscopa Clergyman Who Performed Ceremony -Pastor's Daughters Only Witnesses -Auto Party Coes on Honeymoon, PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 13 .- William L. Payne, an actor, better known as Lew Payne, and Caroline Louise Dudley of New York, the latter Mrs. Leslie Carter, the actress, were united in marriage at noon to-day at the St. John's Episcopal Church in State street by the rector, the Rev. Henry Emerson Hovey.

The greatest secrecy was observed about the matter, and Miss Dudley, or Mrs. Carter, was heavily veiled.

Last Tuesday Mrs. Leslie Carter, accompanied by Miss Munro, Mr. W. J. Dean, William Courtney, Morgan Coman, W. L. Payne and Jack Devereaux, with two chauffeurs, a valet, three maids and a footman, in three big touring automobiles, arrived at the Hotel Rockingham and stayed over night.

Wednesday William L. Payne called on City Clerk W. H. Moran and took out a marriage license, at the same time asking f it was good in Maine. He was told that it was not. That day the party left for Portland, stopping at the Falmouth Hotel.

Shortly after last midnight Mrs. Carter and party arrived at the Hotel Rockingham here, and registering simply as Mrs. Leslie Carter and party, took ten rooms. This morning Mr. Payne again paid a visit to the city clerk and filed other information. He gave his name as William L. Payne: occupation, a student; age, 33; residence New York; birthplace, Elmira, N. Y.; first marriage; father, Alfred T. Payne of New York, an artist. He gave the bride's name, Caroline L. Dudley; residence, New York; age, 30 years; first marriage; father, Austin Dudley, Chicago; occupation, lawyer.

Mr. Payne then called on the Rev. H. E.

Hovey and made the arrangements for the marriage.

At noon, accompanied by Mrs. Carter, he arrived at the chapel. Mrs. Carter wore a light automobile coat and was heavily veiled. They were unaccompanied, and it was necessary for Mr. Hovey to call his two laughters, Mrs. Austin Kautz and Miss Ethel Hovey, as witnesses. The bride was asked if it was her first narriage and she said yes. At the conclusion of the services they left the chanel and walked to the hotel. where the automobile parties were again made up. Before starting not a word was mentioned about the wedding at the hotel and they were undecided as to where they should make their next stopping place. It lay between Gloucester and Winthrop, Mass., and Mrs. Carter finally said: "You people go ahead and we will trail," meaning her and Mr. Payne. Rev. Henry E. Hoxey did not know until after they had left that he had married Mrs. Carter. He said to-night that he did not suspect she had been married before and that was why he had inquired if it wa her first marriage, for Episcopal clergymen do not marry divorced people.

to Leslie E. Carter, a wealthy young Chicagoan. Her maiden name was Louise Dudley. He brought suit for divorce against her in 1889 and finally won in 1894. The court gave him the custody of their eleven-year-old son. According to the decree the boy could have the right to chose between them when he was 15 years old.

Mrs. Carter was first exploited on the stage in "The Ugly Duckling." The money for this production was put up by N. K. Fairbankr, the Chicago packer. Fairbanks balked on paying all the freight, the production being a failure, and David Belasc who taught Mrs. Carter how to act, brought suit against the packer for $65,000. A jury in the Supreme Court here awarded Belasco $16,000.

Belasco then labored with Mrs. Carte to make her a star, and she met with great success later in "The Heart of Maryland." From then on she has had a steady run of successes. Her recent plays have been "Zaza," "Du Barry" and "Adrea."

Payne is best known as Lew Payne. He s a member of the Lambs Club and makes that his headquarters in the city. Payne played here in "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots." He has for some years had a stock company at Albany.

David Belasco said last night that th marriage of Mrs. Carter must be a great

"Why, she wouldn't marry an actor," said Belasco, "for when she decided on such a step she would look higher. I talked with Mrs. Carter over the telephone this evening, and she made no mention of a wedding. I'm sure she would have told me. All she asked over the telephone from me was to extend her vacation a week or two more. I consented to do so."

"J. BIRNBAUM" A SUÍCIDE.

A Man Who Shot Himself at Hotel Belman Is Probably Lawyer Convicted of Larceny.

A man killed himself yesterday in the Hotel Belmont, and every circums seems to indicate that he was Jacob M. Birnbaum, the lawyer whose conviction on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree was affirmed on Thursday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

Birnbaum was convicted on June 27, 1904, and had been fighting the case ever since. He registered on Thursday evening at the hotel at Forty-second street and Fourth avenue and a room on the fifth floor was assigned him. Between 9 and 12 o'clock he sent out and received several telephone messages, one of which was to Dr. B. Tepper. The name signed to the hotel register was simply J. Birnbaum,

When the chambermaid in charge on the fifth floor tried to enter the room yes terday morning she could not get in, al-though it was late in the day. What is called a second inspection was made and finally the manager and a clerk went upstairs and broke down the door. Inside, in the bathroom, they found the body of Birnbaum, fully dressed. He shot him self in the right side of the head. Lying on a table in the room was a note

"Call 409 Orchard and notify Dr.B. Teppe to tell A. Birnbaum. In my coat are two etters to them. Herewith are $5 to pay for room and telephone charges." This was signed "J. M. Birnbaum, New York city." Coroner Harburger was notified and when he arrived at the hotel he found an undertaker in the room. He sent the man way and had the body taken to the Morgue in charge of the police He did this, he said, so that the family might put the burial in the hands of any undertaker they chose. He and the house physician, Dr. Peter J. Gibbons, united in saying that Birnbaum probably had been dead eighteen hours. Coroner Harburger called up Dr. Tepper out said that he got no information about Birnbaum from the doctor. There was nothing in the papers left in the room to tell anything about the suicide. The dead man was apparently about 32 years of age. He

Jacob M. Birnbaum was convicted in the Court of General Sessions of grand larceny in the second degree on June 27 1904. He was the lawyer for a woman named Harriet Coleman in a suit for dam ages against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company. The company paid in settlement of the claim $2,000. Mrs. Coleman asserts that Birnbaum never gave her any of this money, and she made a complaint on this score to the District Attorney.

Brnbaum appealed from his conviction, and on Thursday the Appellate Division affirmed the judgment of the lower court and an order for the rearrest of Birnbaum was issued. Dr. Tepper, to when the dead man adiressed a letter, refused absolutely to say anything about the case. He wouldn even admit that he knew Birnbaum.

NO BRITISH FLEET TO RUSSIA Promised Visit Is Postponed Until More

Since the proposed visit was first announced a section of the British Radicals have opposed it on the ground that such an official act would imply acquiescence in the massacres and be an insult to the Duma. Numerous questions had been asked in Parliament, Foreign Secretary Grey invariably replying that the visit had no connection with the internal affairs of Russia, but was merely intended as an international

Many prominent members of the Russian Duma and Russian newspapers opposed the visit as likely to prejudice the prospects of permanent Russo-British friendship and as liable to be construed as support of the Government against the people. The Russian Government welcomed the plan and approved Foreign Secretary Grey's statements in the House of Commons. It is now intimated, however, that "as infortunately certain political parties in Great Britain and Russia have fomented sharp agitation for the purpose of connecting the visit with Russian internal politics and in view of the political crisis now passing over Russia, as well as the incertain local conditions at some of the ports, the arrival of British ships might cause a recrudescence of the agitation and ead to incidents harmful to the Anglo-Russian relations." Therefore the visit is postponed until more propitious times.

N.Y. YACHT CLUB SAFE ROBBED.

WM. H. OSGOOD'S PACKAGE OF JEWELRY VANISHED FROM IT.

lumor Save That Other Parcels of Value bles Beposited by Members Were Taken Also-No Report Made to the Police-Private Detectives All at Sea.

The safe in the New York Yacht Club in West Forty-fourth street was robbed about a week ago and, according to one report, was practically cleaned of all it contained. One of the members who has lost heavily through the robbery is William H. Osgood. It was through him that the robbery was discovered, it is said.

Every effort has apparently been made to conceal the occurrence of the robbery and at the clubhouse last night reporters were informed very positively that no such robberyhad taken place. Thomas A. Bronson, chairman of the house committee, who was at the club, would not see the reporters, but he sent down word through one of the club servants that there had been no safe robbery and no robbery of any kind in the

Nevertheless, it was learned from a member that a robbery had occurred and that the amount lost will run up into the thousands. Private detectives are said to be at work on the case, but no report, it would seem, has been made as yet to the police.

The safe which was opened and robbed stands in the office of the club, which is in a little room on the floor above the street evel, just at the head of the marble stairs that lead up from the street. It is in charge of a clerk, who is on duty during the day and part of the evening.

On account of its being the yachting season, when most of the members are afloat, the club is practically deserted There are a few members, however, who are living at the club and one of these is Mr. Osgood. He is a well known member His father was the owner of the yach Sappho. Mr. Osgood is wealthy and is not engaged in any business.

Mr. Osgood's family went out of town two weeks ago and his house at 116 West Fifty-fifth street was closed for the summer It was then that Mr. Osgood went to the club. He deposited with the clerk a package containing jewelry and valuables be longing to him and saw the clerk put it in About a week ago, so it was stated last night, Mr. Osgood happened to ask for his jewelry. It was in the afternoon and the clerk to whom he had given the stuff was on duty. The clerk turned around and looked in the safe. The jewelry was gone, According to one report last night, when an investigation was made, Mr. Osgood's jewelry, which was in a pile of valuables, was found to be the only package missing. According to another report, which came from a person close to the club, not only was the Osgood package gone but so were most of the other packages of valuables, the safe having been rifled. The chairman of the house com was at once notified of the robbery and an investigation was started immediately. Every employee of the club was questioned, but all denied knowledge of the robbery. An investigation of the safe showed, it was said, that the combination had been tamit was an "inside job," but as yet, it is under stood, no clue has been discovered which would seem to promise the detection of the

A meeting of the house committee was hurriedly called after the first investigation was made. It was decided to keep the matter as quiet as possible in the hope that the club could clear the mystery without outside assistance. Within the last few days, however, the members of the committee became convinced that the job was altogether too big for them and private detectives were employed. It was impossible last night to get any estimate of the loss involved. There was no information to be obtained from the chibbouse. According to one report workmen have been engaged in making repairs in the office where the safe was located. They are said to have been working near the safe just before the robbery.

It was said at Police Headquarters last night that there was no record there of the robbery and evidently no report of it had been made. The police of the East Fiftyfirst street station house, in whose precinct the yacht club is located, also said that no report had been made to them of the SHIP HITS SCHOOL OF SQUID. Fish Piled a Foot Deep on the Deck of British Schooner.

Boston, July 13.-Struck by a school of squid, which covered her decks and rails, was the unusual experience of the British three masted schooner Damaraland, Capt. Walters, which arrived to-day from St. Martin's, British West Indies, with a cargo

The vessel was just south of Cape Hatteras when she struck into an enormous school of these fish. A wave sent hundreds of them over the deck until they were packed a foot deep on the starboard side. Their long tapering bodies filled one of the boats and the crew had to use shovels to throw them back into the sea.

The crew filled as many barrels and other receptacles as they had aboard with the squid, which they sold for bait when they reached Boston.

DUEL FOUGHT OVER DREYFUS.

RESULT OF ANGRY DEBATE ON BILL HONORING HIM.

Deputy Sarraut Seriously Wounded by Pugliesi-Conti, Whose Face He Slapped -Breyfus and Picquart Back in Army With Higher Rank -Zola Remembered.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. PARIS, July 13 .- France has clearly not heard the last of the Dreyfus affair, though most people devoutly hoped that it had." The wrath that was aroused in the Chamber of Deputies to-day culminated in physical encounters, the general mêlée forcing the President of the Chamber to suspend the sitting and expel visitors and newspaper correspondents.

As a result of one of the personal encounters on the floor of the House a duel has already been fought with probably fatal results. Deputy Pugliesi-Conti and Deputy Albert Sarraut met at Ville d'Avray this afternoon and fought with swords.

In the first engagement Ma Sarraut rushed his opponent and received a bad wound in the breast. As soon as his wife learned of the outcome of the meeting she hurried to her husband's bedside.

MM. Clemenceau and Thomson acted as seconds for M. Sarraut, and-M. Millevoye and Gen. Jacquet acted in a similar capacity for M. Pugliesi-Conti. M. Sarraut was removed to the chateau of Edmond de Gast at Ville d'Avray Ris condition is said to be grave. M. Pugliesi-Conti last distinguished himself in a pugilistic way when he had a fight in the lobby of the Chamber of Deputies with Deputy Celestin Bosc in October, 1904. M. Bose had hissed a speech by Pugliesi-Conti, who later resented the insult with an umbrella for his weapon. The combatants were separated without much damage.

HOUSE, IN DISORDER, HONORS DREYFUS. During the tumultuous session of the Chamber bills were reesed reinstating Capt. Dreyfus in the army with the rank of Major, and Col. Pi quart, his friend and defender, with the rank of Brigadier-General. War Minister Etienne, in introducing the bills, said that it was the Government's intention to inscribe the names of Drevfus and Picquart on the list of candidates for the Legion of Honor.

The bill restoring Dreyfus passed by a vote of 473 to 42, but during the debate it was apparent that the Socialists were determined to precipitate trouble. M. Pres sense, in gentle tones that were subtly provocative, bitterly upbraided the anti-Dreyfus officers, demanding their removal and occasionally employing terms of loathing and otherwise insulting them. This roused the Nationalists to the howling stage and evoked a passionate defence of the

M. Maurice Barres, who, like Gen. Mercier, comes from Lorraine, ascended the tribune defend the Ceneral, who, he said, was a friend he respected. This evoket a howl of execution from the S cialists. President Brisson, in trying to suppress the uproar, said sarcastically to the Cham-

"You should give M. Barres credit for courage." This caused roars of laughter. Prime Minister Sarrien appealed to the better feelings of the Deputies.

ORIGIN OF THE DUEL. Then Deputy Pugliesi-Conti shouted: "The members of the Government are scoundrels."

At this Deputy Sarraut sprang forward and struck Pugliesi-Conti a resounding s'ap in the fare. This caused great uproar and excitement on the floor and the House became a seething mass of struggling and fighting Deputies. The President put on his hat and suspended the sitting. Subsequently the Government obtained type of confidence. Then the bill for the reinstatement of Col. Picquart passed the Chamber by a vote of 467 to 27. Deputy Jules Breton submitted a bill that the remains of Emile Zola, defender of Dreyfus, be transferred from the cameery of Montmartre, where they now lie, to the Pantheon at the expense of the Government. This was adopted by a vote of 341 to 210. S INATE MORE QUIET While this was going on in the Chamber Gen. Mercier, in the Senate, was saying that he could not vote for the rehabilitation of Dreyfus.

M. Barthon, Minister of Public Works,
M. Barthon, Minister of Public Works, lenounced Gen. Mercier, but there was no further excitement.

The Senate passed the bill rehabilitating Dreyfus by a vote of 183 to 30 and the Picquart bill by a vote of 125 to 28. Gen. Mercier's speech provoked a great oise and much derision from the members of the Left. He declared that the judgment of the Rennes court-martial was far more convincing than that of the Court of Cassation. His conviction had not been changed since 1899. The Senate also approved the bill to have Zola buried in the Pantheon.

The Parliamentary session then ended. The municipality has resolved to name a city street Emile Zola. It rejected a proposal to prosecute Gen. Mercier for forgery.

ROOSEVELT TO THE MIKADO. ambassador Wright Presents Autograph Letter at Tokio Reception.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.
TOKIO, July 13.—Ambassador Wright this morning presented to the Mikado an autograph letter from President Rossevelt. Ratifications of the commercial treaty etween Japan and Canada were exchanged yesterday. It provides for the application of the Anglo-Jepanese commercial treaty to Canada. A despatch from Seoul states that the most important article of the mining law, promulgated yesterday, makes its enforcement in each case subject to the approval of the Japanese Resident. This is due to the fact that the largest concessionsires are Orientals. The same law applies to the imperial household mines.
